

Nederlands Dans Theater and English National Ballet: Triple Bill

Dancers from both Nederlands Dans Theater and English National Ballet put on a show stopping, utterly stunning performance at the Salisbury Playhouse. The triple bill of different choreographed pieces, displayed a range of strong emotions. The dancers showed their complete love for dance through every movement of their bodies and facial expressions as they danced with such delicacy and synchronicity with not only the music but also with each other. During one breathtaking sequence the performers danced at such speeds they almost blurred into an illusion.

Two of the dancers had a tumble off the stage and the audience held their breath, but they managed to return to the stage without any serious injuries. All of the performers showed such flexibility and strength as they were effortlessly elevated into the air, and they used their limberness to stretch into positions that most people would find impossible.

I would certainly recommend this to someone who enjoys watching art and emotion through dance.

By Chloe Pile
Young Critic 2011